INTERIOR DEFENSES.

General Manderson Thinks Large Garrisonists Should Be Maintained.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 24.—Congressman Hainer, of this State, who has been recently appointed a member of the committee on national defenses, has written to General Manderson asking for information and advice on the coast defenses and other military matters. The latter, while in Congress, was a member of the Senate committee on military affairs and has given much study to the matter. After directing the committee to original secondary sources of information on the subject and dwelling at length on the need of stronger coast defenses, and especially along the Pacific coast, General Manderson, in his reply, writes as follows:

"While you are at work on this line, the interior of the country should not be neglected. In the event of war, with our small army and comparatively insignificant national guard, it would take months of preparation in the way of drill and discipline to resist invasion. We must not only, when war comes, have a column to resist attack, but we must have troops at all salient points on the border, like Atlanta, Chattanooga, Louisville, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Denver and Omaha, should be made points where large garrisons can be maintained."

HEALY COURT-MARTIAL.

The Captain Charged with Mistaking the Wharf for His Bank.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24.—At the court-martial today of Captain Healy, of the revenue cutter Bear, charged with drunkenness and unofficial-like conduct, Lieutenant Ross, of the Corwin, told how the crews of the different cutters at Aniakchak were invited to a "whisky and tobacco social" on board the British ship Phoenix. According to Ross, as Healy was returning from the festivity he was so overcome that he walked over the edge of the wharf thinking it was his bank. After his mishap was known witness said it caused great relief throughout the fleet. The defense tried to prove, through engineer Jones and Lieutenant Daniels, that Healy was the victim

The grand American handicap at live pigeons, which was scheduled to take place at Elkwood Park, New Jersey, which was to be held at the same ground on March 24, 25 and 26, instead. The reason given for the change was the very limited space in the old Senate chamber, where the Supreme Court sits, the public was generally disappointed and few persons gained admission. In the court room were quite a number of Senators and Representatives and some of the most prominent members of the bar of the country, including Mr. Joseph Choate, of New York. Mr. Harrison appeared just after the marshal had called the court to order. He took a seat at a table immediately in front of the Chief Justice, and, sitting there, in the presence of many famous men, he immediately became the center of all eyes. It was his first public appearance in Washington since he left the White House three years ago. His appearance had changed but slightly. The careworn look had disappeared and time, seemingly, had dealt kindly with him. There was the same soft, gray hair, and beard, and the same eyes. He wore a pair of ordinary spectacles, and consulted his notes freely while Judge Rhodes, who had preceded him, was speaking.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Supreme Court room, the center of attraction at the Capitol to-day. The news that ex-President Harrison would appear drew thousands through the mud and rain to the Capitol, and for two hours before noon the halls were thronged and the doors were besieged. WAYLAIED AND SHOT

BERTRAM E. ATWATER, A CHICAGO ARTIST, KILLED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

He Was on the Way to Visit His Betrothed in a St. Louis Suburb When Attacked.

WEBSTER GROVE, Mo., Jan. 24.—Bertram E. Atwater, a well-known artist, of Chicago, was waylaid and shot and killed by highwaymen in Webster Grove at 8 o'clock last evening. He arrived in this village on a train from St. Louis at 8 o'clock and employed a young man, Cotton Schmidt, to carry a valise. Two men stopped the way, presented pistols and ordered him to get out of the car. Instead of obeying the order, Mr. Atwater, who had his pistol in his hand, fired a shot at one of the men. The highwaymen fired several shots and Atwater fell dead on the sidewalk. Schmidt was wounded.

Mr. Atwater was coming here to visit his betrothed when waylaid. One of the robbers, John Smith, wounded by the plucky Chicagoan, will probably die. The other, Samuel Foster, a colored ex-convict, who fired the fatal shot, and Peter Smith, who arranged the trap into which Mr. Atwater was unsuspectingly lured and then slain, are in custody. While the inquest was being held to-day citizens of the village became so enraged that it was with the greatest difficulty that order could be maintained. The prevailing impulse to drag the highwaymen from their hiding places and hang them. Both the Smiths, who are cousins, have confessed as to the part taken in each in the crime. The volunteer who volunteered to carry Atwater's valise from the station, admits that he led the latter to the fatal spot.

Genevieve Orton, Atwater's fiancée, is almost prostrated with grief. The wedding is said to have been for or early date, and the object of Mr. Atwater's visit last night was to talk over some of the preliminary arrangements.

Later—This afternoon Sam Foster and Peter Smith, the two highwaymen who were given by the Chicago police to the officers of justice, were taken to the jail. The inquest was in progress Foster and Schmidt made a sensational attempt to escape by jumping from the second-story window of the court room, but they were quickly recaptured. Their attempt to escape and the confession of Schmidt, who confessed that he had helped the highwaymen, were the only news that had gathered. The officers in a wagon started to take the two men to a place of safety. They were fired on by the highwaymen. One of the highwaymen, who was named Schmidt, was killed. The other, who was named Foster, was wounded. The highwaymen were taken to the jail. The officers in a wagon started to take the two men to a place of safety. They were fired on by the highwaymen. LYNCHERS IN UCLE SAN'S CLUTCHES.

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Deputy United States Marshal Newman yesterday served warrants on R. M. Wallace, Ike Heyman, W. B. Derrick, Thomas McKelvey and Pleasant Wallace, charging them with detaining the United States marshal and his family in the jail here for several days ago, by Postoffice Inspector Beard of the delay of the train some weeks ago, when they were taken to a place of safety. WOMEN SHOULD ROW.

Lucille Eaton Hill Says It Results in Superb Figures.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The Cornell lady students do not mean to abandon their hopes to establish a crew here, even though the Athletic Council has refused to take official cognizance of the project. At Sage College this morning a reporter was told that steps were in progress to have a crew regardless of the council's action. Miss A. Keller, who is one of the most prominent workers for the woman's right, has just received a long letter from Lucille Eaton Hill, director of physical training at Wellesley College, Massachusetts, in which Miss Hill strongly indorses the movement on foot here. "I also forward photographs of last spring's crew, thinking it might arouse popular interest," she writes. AN INSANE FIRE BUG

A PYROMANIAC'S EFFORTS TO BURN THE MATTEAWAN ASYLUM.

Heretic Work of the Other Male Patients to Subdue the Flames—Panic in a Chicago Building.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 24.—C. S. Atchell, a patient at the Matteawan Hospital for the State Insane, this afternoon set fire to the institution in five different places, and for a few hours the buildings were filled with flames. The fire was at first confined to the kitchen, which is some distance from where the patients are confined. No sooner was the fire discovered than the flames spread to the dining hall, and then to the main building. The fire was so intense that the patients were terror-stricken, especially the women. The pyromaniac had made the most careful preparations for the destruction of the building, as large piles of kindling were found in the kitchen, and the patients were terror-stricken, especially the women. POINT AT ISSUE.

General Harrison referred to steps taken to see what could be done with the arid lands and said the land was valueless without water. "If we have the ordinary laws of the United States," he asked, "could we ever have brought out their fertility? There must be some combination. Either the power of the State or the government must interfere, or the United States must put vast tracts of these lands into the hands of individuals. It is simply a question of whether this is to be in the hands of a private corporation or the public. There is no other way to make the landholder independent. He is otherwise a serf, and the water supply is in the hands of a private corporation. A certain portion of the stock should be made appurtenant to the land to be irrigated, so that every land owner becomes a stockholder in the irrigation company. The people who own the land choose a board of directors, and have the management and control of the whole effect. They are freed by this participation from the threat or apprehension of the control by those who have no interest in the case. This legislation was enacted nearly ten years ago, and has been constantly exercised ever since and directed by other States." He regarded as sufficient notice to all parties the presentation of the petition and the fixing of a day on which it would be heard by the board of supervisors. He referred to a number of decisions of courts where such notice had been given and was deemed adequate.

FEARS OF SOME BRITONS

THERE MAY BE A BASIS FOR THE REPORT OF AN ALLIANCE.

Englishmen Terrorized by Boer-Ultimatum Likely to Be Released—West River Opened by China.

(Special Cable Letter.)

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Though the reported Russo-Turkish alliance is discredited here and on the Continent, rumors in connection with it and various phases of the Eastern question are still current. The possibility of a secret understanding between Russia and France on the one side and Turkey on the other is more to be feared than an open treaty. Turkey would hardly dare to openly defy England by entering into a compact with Britain's bitter enemy, but the Sultan's advisers are known to be tricky, and might do secretly what they would not undertake about openly. It is probably no fear that was responsible for the rumor, yesterday that the flying squadron, hurriedly commissioned during the Transvaal war scare, had received instructions to immediately proceed to the Mediterranean and augment the great fleet of British warships already there, in the event of a Russian attack. The flying squadron, which was reported to have been found for the flying squadron, was another report to the effect that Lord Salisbury's cabinet, after a conference, had sent an ultimatum to Turkey. This ultimatum was supposed to demand the immediate abrogation of the alleged offensive and defensive alliance treaty with Russia. In event of the Sultan's refusal, the British war fleet, so the rumor went, was to force the Dardanelles, destroy the forts on each side and pour sufficient shells into Constantinople to bring Abdul Hamid and his advisers to their senses. While these rumors were being spread, the British war fleet, so the rumor went, was to force the Dardanelles, destroy the forts on each side and pour sufficient shells into Constantinople to bring Abdul Hamid and his advisers to their senses. AN INSANE FIRE BUG

A PYROMANIAC'S EFFORTS TO BURN THE MATTEAWAN ASYLUM.

Heretic Work of the Other Male Patients to Subdue the Flames—Panic in a Chicago Building.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 24.—C. S. Atchell, a patient at the Matteawan Hospital for the State Insane, this afternoon set fire to the institution in five different places, and for a few hours the buildings were filled with flames. The fire was at first confined to the kitchen, which is some distance from where the patients are confined. No sooner was the fire discovered than the flames spread to the dining hall, and then to the main building. The fire was so intense that the patients were terror-stricken, especially the women. The pyromaniac had made the most careful preparations for the destruction of the building, as large piles of kindling were found in the kitchen, and the patients were terror-stricken, especially the women. POINT AT ISSUE.

General Harrison referred to steps taken to see what could be done with the arid lands and said the land was valueless without water. "If we have the ordinary laws of the United States," he asked, "could we ever have brought out their fertility? There must be some combination. Either the power of the State or the government must interfere, or the United States must put vast tracts of these lands into the hands of individuals. It is simply a question of whether this is to be in the hands of a private corporation or the public. There is no other way to make the landholder independent. He is otherwise a serf, and the water supply is
